Constitutional and legal framework within which the Covenant is implemented (art. 2)

1. With regard to the assertion in the State party’s report that the international human rights treaties that the country has ratified are an integral part of the “Bill of Rights”, which is itself part of the Interim Constitution (see CCPR/C/SDN/5, para. 15), please clarify the legal status of the Covenant in the State party in relation to the Constitution and other domestic law. Does it have equal or superior status? Please provide examples of any cases where national courts have directly applied provisions of the Covenant or been asked to rule on the compatibility of domestic laws with the Covenant. Please provide information on any instances in which the provisions of sharia law have been found to be in conflict with the Covenant and on any measures that have been taken to repeal those provisions. Please state what measures have been taken to educate government officials, law enforcement agencies, the armed forces and the general public on the Covenant. Please indicate whether the State party report was prepared on the basis of a consultative process. Please also indicate what measures the State party has in place to implement the Committee’s recommendations and whether the State party intends to ratify the Optional Protocol to the Covenant.

2. Please provide detailed information on the National Human Rights Commission, including the activities that it has carried out since its establishment in 2012, and describe its mandate, powers and budget. Please comment on reports that the Commission is not provided with sufficient resources for the effective and independent exercise of its mandate. Please indicate whether the Commission’s mandate is wholly in accordance with the principles relating to the status of national institutions for the promotion and protection of human rights (the Paris Principles).

3. Please provide further information on the status of the State reform programme, which, according to the State party, “focuses on justice and envisages a veritable legislative revolution to amend various pieces of national legislation with a view to bringing them into line with the Constitution and the obligations of the Sudan under international treaties” (see CCPR/C/SDN/5, para. 15). In particular, please provide information on:

State of emergency (art. 4)

Following the issuance of a decree by the President declaring a six-month state of emergency in the provinces of North Kordofan and Kassala on 30 December 2017, please indicate whether the decree is still in force and, if so, whether rights have been derogated from, which rights they are and when the State party intends to revoke the state of emergency. Please comment on reports that the state of emergency in Darfur has led to the curtailment of fundamental rights and freedoms and that there have been arbitrary arrests and prolonged detentions without judicial oversight. Please explain the steps being taken to ensure that article 211 (a) of the Interim Constitution, which lists the non-derogable rights during states of emergency, fully complies with article 4 (2) of the Covenant, particularly with regard to articles 7, 11, 15, 16 and 18. Please indicate steps being taken to investigate and document human rights violations committed during the state of emergency and to investigate and prosecute persons against whom there are credible allegations of serious human rights violations. Please provide information on measures taken to comply with the requirement to notify the Secretary-General of the United Nations of any rights derogated from, the reasons for which such action was taken and the termination of any state of emergency, under article 4 (3) of the Covenant.
